The Chicago-area training is scheduled for July 30 – Aug. 2, 2018, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Olver is dedicated to helping people get along better with the important people in their lives, including themselves, at home and at work. This interactive program is designed for therapists, counselors, social workers, clergy, school administrators and teachers. The training will help you build effective relationships with the most challenging clients while determining what the client really wants. It also includes a four-step approach to problem solving and behavior change along with a successful plan to maximize its effects. Individuals who want to take control of their lives may also want to take this course. Because the program provides strategies to improve basic relationships, it could help you get more of what you want out of life.

This program is the first step in the Reality Therapy Certification process and an opportunity to receive training in the ideas and concepts of Dr. William Glasser's Choice Theory®.

If you are interested in on-site training, contact Kim Olver at (708) 957-6047 or email: Kim@CoachingforExcellence.biz to book a private training session.
